excellent benefits package as well as a number of policies and programs to support employees as they balance work and family, if applicable.

General Duties: We are seeking outstanding lecturers who can teach/co-teach lecture, seminar, and/or laboratory courses in plant and microbial biology, both at the undergraduate and graduate levels. In addition to teaching responsibilities, general duties include holding office hours, assigning grades, advising students, preparing course materials (e.g., syllabus), and maintaining a course website.

Basic Qualifications (at the time of application): must have an advanced degree or be enrolled in an advanced degree program at time of application.

Additional Qualifications (by the start date): advanced degree required by the start date of the job

Preferred Qualifications: documented experience in teaching one of the biological sciences at the college level is strongly preferred.

Salary: Commensurate with experience.

Applications will be accepted and reviewed for department needs through November 30, 2021. Applications are typically reviewed for fall course needs in April/May, for spring course needs in October/November, and for summer session course needs in February/March. Those interested in remaining in the pool after November 30, 2021, will need to reapply.

Please note: The use of a lecturer pool does not guarantee that an open position exists. See the review date specified in AP Recruit to learn whether the department is currently reviewing applications for a specific position. If there is no future review date specified, your application may not be considered at this time.
