Job Description

Job Description

The Department of Mathematical Sciences in the Charles V. Schaefer, Jr. School of Engineering and Science (SES) at Stevens Institute of Technology (Stevens) invites applications for a Lecturer position, starting in Fall 2024. All qualified candidates whose teaching interests are aligned with the department's educational offerings will be considered. Teaching responsibilities will focus on undergraduate courses and entry-level graduate courses offered on-campus and online.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. degree in a relevant field of mathematics or statistics by August 1, 2024, and should possess passion for and be committed to excellence in both undergraduate and graduate education, thereby contributing to the innovative and entrepreneurial culture at Stevens. It is expected that candidates will work collaboratively in an interdisciplinary environment.

The Department of Mathematical Sciences is an internationally recognized center of excellence for research and education in contemporary mathematical sciences with an undergraduate program in mathematics, a Ph.D. program in mathematics, and master's degree programs in mathematics, applied mathematics, data science, and in actuarial mathematics and quantitative risk. The Data Science master's program is offered in collaboration with the Department of Computer Science, the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, as well as the School of Business. The Department hosts the Algebra and Cryptology Center (ACC), participates in the Stevens Institute for Artificial Intelligence (SIAI), the Center for Research toward Advancing Financial Technologies (CRAFT), and has several outreach activities and interests in innovative educational technologies. Stevens provides excellent computational facilities and opportunities for interdisciplinary research with programs in engineering and science, computer science, quantitative finance, and business.
