The laboratory of Associate Professor Surajit Bhattacharyya at SBS is actively engaged in cutting-edge research. We focus on:

- Molecular mechanisms of cell adhesion proteins (integrins), and developing therapeutics for cancer, inflammation, and blood-related diseases.
- Host defense antimicrobial peptides and proteins, aiming to design new antimicrobial and antiendotoxic molecules.
- De-novo designed synthetic proteins with functional properties.

We are seeking a motivated Project Officer to join our team and examine protein complexes, with the aim of developing therapeutics against various diseases. The project will focus on the interactions of protein complexes in integrin signaling.

Key Responsibilities:

- Express and purify proteins and peptides
- Conduct cell culture experiments
- Perform protein biochemistry and assays
- Other tasks as assigned
