the forefront of Chemical Biology with our internationally recognized faculty in the healthcare domain as well as with professionally diverse experiences in academia and industry. The department currently consists of 19 full-time faculty members, approximately 148 undergraduates, 24 Masters, and 18 doctoral students. The CCB faculty is active in research and has brought in $4.5M research funding from NIH and NSF over the last three years.

The strategic vision of CCB, newly formulated in 2021, will strengthen our department to be a community of researchers with molecular, cellular, and computational minds, dedicated to educating the next generation of science leaders and innovators and exploring transformative scientific ideas for global societal impact. Per this strategic vision, we would like to further expand our research in Chemical Biology and complement current strengths in computational chemistry, drug discovery, and cancer research.

The ideal candidate is expected to build a strong externally funded research program aimed at generating new insights into compelling problems in Chemical Biology. The candidate is also expected to develop and deliver innovative undergraduate and graduate courses. This position requires the candidate to have a Ph.D. degree in Chemical Biology or related fields. All research areas in Chemical Biology will be considered to complement our current strengths mentioned above.

Stevens Institute of Technology is a premier, private research university in Hoboken, New Jersey, overlooking the Manhattan skyline. Stevens prepares its more than 8,000 undergraduate and graduate students for an increasingly complex and technology-centric world, leveraging finance, computing, engineering and the arts to confront the most challenging problems of our time with innovative teaching and research. The university is in the top 1% nationally of colleges with the highest-paid graduates.

Stevens values diversity and seeks candidates who will contribute to a welcoming and inclusive environment for students, faculty and staff of all backgrounds. We are an NSF ADVANCE institution committed to equitable practices and policies, and strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minority candidates, veterans and individuals with disabilities.
