Job Description

Position Overview

The Tufts Pre-College team and the Tufts Environmental Studies Program are currently seeking a Program Instructor for the 2-week Climate Resilience Institute (CRI). This is a summer program offered to rising High School juniors, seniors, and graduating seniors. The goal of this program is to teach students about the interdisciplinary nature of contemporary environmental issues and how they impact climate resilience. Students will learn from diverse voices and leading scholars and practitioners at the front lines of environmental science, policy, justice, and climate activism through a combination of lectures by the lead instructor and other experts in the field. Students will have the opportunity to go on several field trips, supplementing in-class instruction and introducing students to the broad array of career paths available in the vast environmental field. The program has a strong focus on hands-on learning and culminates with the completion of a capstone project that involves data collection, analysis and visualization. The Climate Resilience Institute will take place over two weeks during July
